And you really think this thing is more able to record that fuahahah... stupid statement than a laptop? It looks ancient.

Delilah

I do. Look, you can try and if it doesn't work we can just not record stuff. But Mr. Head of the Institute wants to have audio recordings of statements and I don't want to anger him on my first days in the archives.

Archivist

I mean, yeah, but like... I don't even know how these things work. They were out of use even when Leo was Head Archivist. Do I really need to watch a tutorial on these?

Delilah

Yes, Zam. Yes, you do.

Archivist

Fine.... I guess.

[SOUNDS OF KEYES CLICKING, THE AFORMENTIONED VIDEO CAN BE HEARD QUIETLY IN THE BACKGROUND]

Delilah

Archivist

Delilah

Do you know when the other two are arriving?

Archivist

Delilah

I've talked with him a few times. Well.. talked at him would probably be a better way of putting it. I know he works in storage and that's it. Never more than a greeting when I walked by.

Okay, the first recording worked, good. I can play it back and I can hear myself talk. Which is slightly weird, but I figure I will get used to it eventually. I hope so at least, if I ever need to revise some of these tapes. Or I might die by cringing too much at myself.
